Case Scenario A

A female member of your church disclosed experiencing domestic abuse to your minister who supported her pastorally for a while until she reported the matter to the police. Your minister was approached by the husband (who is also the Men's ministry leader) making counter-allegations about his wife. The wife has now left the church and has written to the Trustees outlining her concerns that the church had failed to support her appropriately. You are a member of the Board/eldership team and the couple have attended your church for a long time.

- What actions should now be taken and who can and should be notified?
- What would a satisfactory outcome look like?

Case Scenario B

Your Safeguarding officer has been contacted by the police following a report made to them by the parents of a young person (aged 15) who occasionally attends the youth group in your organisation. The parents allege that one of your youth workers has been contacting their child privately and sending them inappropriate messages via Instagram. The worker in question is an intern on your trainee leadership programme who disclosed recently to their line manager that they have a pornography addiction. As such, there are accountability arrangements in place to support them.

- What areas would you expect to see come under review in relation to this incident?
- What would a satisfactory outcome look like?

Case Scenario C

Your Chair of Trustees, Trustee for Safeguarding and Safeguarding Coordinator have been responding to a case that has recently hit the media. It relates to a series of allegations made against a current trustee, who in the past was a church minister. Your local press has approached you saying that the individual has had a record of historic concerns and want you to comment. The Board are keen to demonstrate that your organisation has robust policies in place and that you take safeguarding seriously.

- How should you respond to the press and who should be notified?
- Is there any action required in relation to the individual's association with your organisation?
